

NINO output waveform

When the input polarity is reversed, the output lines exchange shape, the red becomes the blue and vice versa, but always the line going up is much lower than the line going down, and the line going down has always a relatively long tail.